Girl's Heroism Acclaimed

being recommended by the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department for one of two scholarships offered each year by baseball star Bob Feller.

The American Red Cross is investigating her background training in First Aid to ascertain if she is eligible for the Red Cross Life Saving Medal.

All this "fuss", as Ruth calls it, started shortly after she found young Larry Stansbury engulfed in a tar pit. The child was in the mire up to his eyes when the quick-thinking girl placed some boards on the gummy surface of the pit and made her way to the helpless child. First by the hair and then under the arms she tugged at the youngster who was gasping for air through the black mess that covered his mouth and nostrils. She uncovered the boy's mouth and nose and breathed life-sustaining air into his lungs. As she made her way back to the bank the Los Angeles County Fire Department arrived on the scene.

"Thanks," she told Capt. L. D. Whitlatch of the fire department, "for coming so quickly. But, I think Larry will be all right now." But that was a week ago.

Today the young boy, who owes his life to Ruth Oriani, has probably forgotten the incident—but not so with his mother, Mrs. James Stansbury or with the community, state, and nation that heard of the girl's deed over hundreds of radio stations.

SCENE OF RESCUE—Ruth Vivian Oriani, 17, indicates the spot in the abandoned oil well sump near Normandie and 174th street, outside Torrance, where she rescued two-year-old Larry Stansbury just as he was being drawn under the surface by the thick tar in which he had become mired. Planks showing in this photograph Ruth obtained from a near-by oil well derrick site, laid them on the gooey mess and was able to walk out to Larry before they, too, mired. New Evening Courses Open

In response to popular interest, three new classes for adults will be added to the program at Torrance Evening High School, according to Al Applegate, principal.

A new course in Dressmaking and Tailoring began on Wednesday, Oct. 6, and meets once each week from 6:30-9:30 Mrs. Flora Holt is the instructor.

An additional class in Ceramics opens this (Thursday) evening from 7 to 9:30.

A new course in blueprint reading also will start this evening under the instruction of Peter Nettleman.

Sgt. Wallace Now in Army Publicity Unit

Sergeant Kenneth E. Wallace, formerly of Torrance, has been placed on detached service with the public information section of the First Cavalry Brigade, First Cavalry Division, in Nagai, Japan.

While on duty with this First Cavalry Division unit, Sergeant Wallace will aid in preparing news releases for troopers of the command for publication in hometown newspapers and for use of local radio stations.

Assigned to the public information section since June, 1947, Sergeant Wallace joined the occupation forces for the second time, having served in Japan from Oct. 3 to Dec. 15 of 1945.

Formation of Orchestra Is Being Planned

Formation of a community orchestra for Torrance is being considered, according to Abe Milstein, director of music activities for Torrance High School.

It is planned to hold rehearsals every Wednesday night at the high school. Milstein says he believes there is sufficient instrumentation for a local orchestra if all musicians will take the time to turn out.

EXAMINING BOARD
The Torrance Medical Group has been designated as the examining board for the city of Torrance, for the three-month period ending next Dec. 31 by order of the City Council.

Lewis Wallen of Torrance Now in Japan

Private Lewis Wallen, now serving with the 11th Airborne Division in Sendai, Japan, has recently returned from Funoaka, Japan where he fired the M1 rifle for record. He is the husband of Mrs. Lillian E. Wallen of Torrance, California.

Pvt. Wallen fired the M1 rifle at the range in Funoaka and qualified as an expert rifleman. The firing consisted of firing on the two, three, and five hundred yard range with slow and rapid firing being used.

Pvt. Wallen served with the 82nd Airborne Division in the European Theater during World War II.
